Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurImagine setting up a new life, in a warm climate, where everything is cheaper. Sounds like heaven doesnt it? But is it?Heres a fact. No matter where you are in the world, there will always be something wrong, if you look hard enough.Andy Frazier moved to France 5 years ago, exchanging his rat-race life in corporate business, for one in a big old farmhouse in a rural little village, along with his partner, a selection of interesting animals and some power-tools. By day, he earns a modest living as a writer.

Generally, he is happy.But often he complains. Sometimes he even rants. Because the whole world is crammed full of annoying things. This hilarious book is a look at the world around him over a two year period, as Andy has a pop at everything from the red wine and red politics to the price of sandwiches.
