Description :

Prsentation de l'diteur Paul and Samantha Barlowe didnt believe in ghosts until they stay in a one hundred fifty-year-old farmhouse in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. While Paul is shooting a historical documentary film for the local tourist bureau, they are visited by two evil ghosts in need of a human couple to grow even stronger. The Barlowes become caught up in ancient folklore and the supernatural, putting their lives in danger. They seek the help of a local Pow Wow woman who can cast an ancient spell that will free them. Biographie de l'auteur Joyce Zeller lives in Eureka Springs, Arkansas where she serves as an alderman on the City Council. She was born and raised in Lancaster, Pennsylvania where her last job was writing historical and general interest features for a local magazine. She has been a wife and mother, has written a food column for a newspaper, designed sets for amateur theatrical productions, and acted and directed some, served in the United States Women's Army Corps in the 1950s, worked in print production, became a professional perfumer, created the Arkansas Sesquicentennial Fragrance in 1986, and owned a fragrance retail shop for thirty years. All books are available online and at select bookstores. I've used all this living, sharing my knowledge to give my readers a new and exciting experience.
